Farm Credit Supports Plant It Forward SC

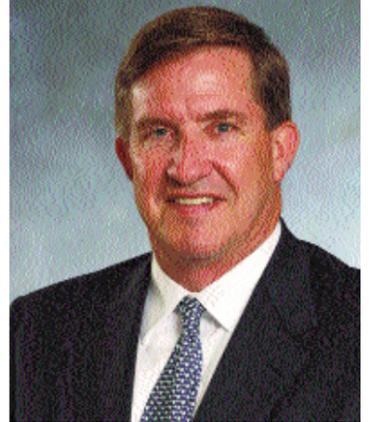

The Farm Credit System was created 100 years ago with a simple, but critical, mission to support rural communities and agriculture with reliable and consistent credit. Recently in South Carolina, Farm Credit has done so much more than this by supporting the farmer flood relief fund, Plant it Forward SC.

During tough times and natural disasters such as the 2015 flood, it is clear why Farm Credit is a much-needed mainstay in the agriculture community. The network understands the unique challenges that farmers face and is positioned to bring them the services needed to succeed. Collectively, AgFirst AgSouth, and ArborOne donated $100,000 to Plant it Forward SC.

“Because of Farm Credit’s dedication to agriculture and the success of farmers in South Carolina and beyond, AgFirst, AgSouth and ArborOne were pleased

Efficiency and Effectiveness at AgriBiz

The fourth SC AgriBiz and Farm Expo in Florence just wrapped up, and I think this may have been the best one yet. As I’ve said before, the Expo showcases all that South Carolina agriculture has to offer from food to farms, and I always enjoy my time there. There’s something for everyone, regardless of the size of your farm or how long you’ve been in the business. Let me share a few highlights from AgriBiz 2016 with you.

The Expo started in 2013 and has grown exponentially. If you’re a regular to the Expo, you may remember a few years back I was buried in a grain bin for a safety demonstration... I didn’t volunteer for that this year, but I did enjoy speaking with visitors at the “fireside chat.” It’s always nice to join in fellowship with farmers and others interested in agriculture. A sales rep for a fertilizer company told me that he could see more farmers in three hours at the expo than in three days driving around the state.

Two of the Sunbelt Farmers of the Year, Tom Trantham of South Carolina and Danny Kornegay of North Carolina, were on hand. Their farms are shining examples of how innovation and diversity lead to a successful agribusiness. They also illustrate the theme of this year’s Expo: Efficiency and Effectiveness.

Scenes from 2016 AgriBiz and Farm Expo

Several thousand people attended the AgriBiz and Farm Expo in Florence, Jan. 13 and 14.

SC Commissioner of Agriculture Hugh Weathers chatted with many folks, including David Grant, the host of Horse Tales TV, and Mark Myers, founder of the Black Cowboy Festival in Rembert.

Indoor vendors and exhibits, seminars with the latest farm information, and outdoor displays offered many choices for visitors.

New equipment, such as the gigantic combine at left, was a big hit with farmers.

The Taste of South Carolina featured unique food combinations prepared by several of the state's new Chef Ambassadors.

Wednesday was youth day, with many high school and college students learning more about agriculture. Interesting displays filled the civic center.

Employee Spotlight

Roy Copelan

In December, the SC Department of Agriculture recognized employees for their years of dedicated service.

Roy Copelan is the embodiment of loyal service. He joined the department in 1972 as a marketing specialist, where he initially covered livestock markets all over the state.

In 1975 he started the International Trade Program, which developed foreign markets for South Carolina foods. Over the next 32 years, Copelan traveled to 73 foreign countries to open new food markets. His program started at ground zero, but grew to $360 million annually.

Also, from 1989 to 2005 he led the Ag Study Tour for South Carolina farmers, taking them on trips all over the United States and internationally to learn about agricultural practices in other areas.

Copelan retired from SCDA in 2006 but soon thereafter went to work part time for the SC Beef Council and the SC Cattlemen's Association. He maintains an office at the Department of Agriculture. Although he has worked for 44 years, he doesn't show any signs of slowing down.

Plant It Forward SC

to provide seed money to the Advocates for Agriculture's Plant it Forward initiative," said Kathy Heustess, president and CEO of ArborOne. "This program will help farmers struggling to recover from the devastating October floods find firm footing to rebuild their operations."

The Farm Credit System has served agriculture and rural communities through good times and challenging periods for the past century. Farm Credit stands poised to take on its next hundred years as the financial underpinning of rural America with reliable, consistent and competitive credit.

AgFirst is one of four Farm Credit banks in the nation and provides funding, technology and other services to 19 associations in 15 Eastern states and Puerto Rico. These associations provide real estate and production financing to more than 80,000 farmers, agribusinesses, and rural homeowners. Two of the Associations – including AgSouth and ArborOne – serve customers in South Carolina and Georgia.

AgSouth has 24 offices serving 59 Georgia counties and 34 South Carolina counties. AgSouth, which is based in Statesboro, Ga., has administrative offices in Orangeburg and Spartanburg.

ArborOne has two offices serving 12 counties in the northeastern portion of South Carolina. They are based in Florence. AgSouth and ArborOne provide a number of financial services for agribusinesses and farm families, including loans for rural real estate, agriculture, timber, rural homes, farm equipment and farm buildings. In addition to loans they also provide farm related services including crop insurance.

For more information on all that Farm Credit has to offer, visit the websites: Agsouthfc.com, Agfirst.com, and Arborone.com.

The South Carolina Department of Agriculture does not guarantee delivery of the SC Market Bulletin by the publication date.

FFA Builds Young Ag Leaders

FFA is an intercurricular student organization for those interested in agriculture and leadership.

Through agricultural education, students have opportunities for leadership development, personal growth and career success. Ag instruction is delivered through three major components:

- * Classroom/Laboratory instruction
- * Supervised Agricultural Experience (work-based learning)
- * Student leadership (National FFA Organization).

The South Carolina FFA is celebrating a 43-year record high in membership. To find out if your local school district has an Agriculture Education program and FFA Chapter, visit <http://www.scaged.org> or contact Keith Cox, Executive Director of the SC FFA, at cox@clermson.edu.

AgriBiz Expo

on the Farm. Farmers have long done more with less – one of the many reasons agribusiness is the No. 1 industry in South Carolina.

In keeping with the theme of efficiency, I found the workshop "Making Biodiesel from Crops Grown with Manure" particularly interesting. Offered as a part of the Confined Animal Manure Management conference, the training helps livestock farmers improve their sustainability and reduce their environmental impact through new technologies and ideas, like turning manure into fuel. Talk about doing more with less!

Youth Day was once again a success with more than 125 students in attendance. These students have the chance to interact with colleges who offer degrees in agricultural fields, including Clemson University, Horry-Georgetown Technical College, Orangeburg County Technical College, Piedmont Tech, Spartanburg Community College and Trident Technical College. It's important to seize every opportunity to engage young people who are interested in agriculture and agribusiness. After all, in South Carolina we have to maintain over 200,000 jobs in the agribusiness sector.

Something new at the Expo this year, the Food Truck Rodeo featured the finest South Carolina flavors from barbecue to seafood to donuts. Speaking of food, the Taste of SC showcased the 2016 class of Chef Ambassadors dishing up palate-pleasing combinations like Clemson bleu cheese with Manchester Farms quail, and hickory smoked pork over collards with cracklin' cornbread. If that's not Southern flavor, I don't know what is.

It was fun to check out the antique tractors, courtesy of Waccamaw Tractor Club and Lumber River Old Iron Tractor Club. While new technology is important, it's equally as important to pay homage to our heritage and remember how far we've come. I grew up driving some of the models they had.

We started Thursday morning off with an event that means a great deal to me: the Commissioner's Breakfast, a fundraiser for the SC Commissioner's School for Agriculture. Over the past three years, companies and agribusiness organizations contributed more than $20,600 to this worthy program. Every dollar raised increases the opportunities for young students to become involved with agriculture and develop careers in the industry. I am very appreciative of the generous support from each sponsor.

The Expo gave those who were there a renewed sense of excitement and optimism about the great things in store for South Carolina agriculture in 2016. Whether it was a new connection made or a helpful tip on data management, I'm sure that many folks took some ideas back to the farm to enhance their effectiveness and efficiency in the coming years.

Agritourism Venues
